West School gets face-lift funds

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The West School is ready for a face-lift. State Senator Bruce Tarr, the Senate's Minority Whip, and State Representative James Miceli, the Vice Chairman of the House Committee on Rules, have successfully appropriated $103,000 toward the redevelopment of the West School on Shawsheen Avenue.

Identical provisions for the appropriation were offered in the House and Senate versions of the budget by Tarr and Miceli. These provisions have been included in the final version of the budget, known as the conference committee report, which was approved by both branches.

"With the approach of Wilmington's 275th anniversary, it seems fitting that we are able to secure funding for this historic landmark," Tarr said. "The West School serves to remind us, through all of the changes that time has brought, of the architectural and social heritage that Wilmington enjoys."

The West School, a one-room schoolhouse, was built in 1875 and remained in operation into the 1940's. It is located on Shawsheen Avenue directly across from Aldrich Street and is one of the only two municipal buildings in Wilmington to appear on the National Register of Historic Places.

"I am proud of the work the Historical Commission has done in the Town of Wilmington," Miceli said. "This funding will allow the commission to continue its work in preserving the history of the town. I am pleased that I was able to help secure this money for such a great and worthy cause."

For Selectman Frank West, the rehabilitation of the school has been a priority for quite some time. West, who first joined the Wilmington Historic Commission 14 years ago, assisted in the efforts to have the school named in the National Register of Historic Places. He has made efforts ever since toward a much needed rehabilitation of the building.

"It's a great thing for the town and I can't wait to see it rehabbed," West said. "The news really made my July 4th weekend." West would like to see the rededication of the historic building take place as part of Wilmington's 275th Anniversary celebrations next year. As an end use, he would like to see at least a portion of

Plan submitted for Rocco's Dump clean-up

By STEPHEN BJORK

TEWKSBURY/WILMINGTON - A draft work plan has been submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) by the parties named primarily responsible for the clean-up of the Sutton Brook Disposal Superfund site.

The Sutton Brook Disposal Superfund Site, commonly referred to as Rocco's Dump, covers a total of 100 acres in Tewksbury and Wilmington. Tewksbury and Wilmington residents have spent more than 13 years working towards the clean-up of the site.

The draft, consisting of more than 500 pages, was submitted on June 23, in accordance with an agreement struck between the EPA and 25 Primary Responsible Parties (PRP's) back in February.

The agreement called for the PRP's to conduct extensive studies to determine the nature and the extent of the contamination and to evaluate alternatives for remediating the site. The PRP's are responsible for all expenses involved in the study, including the reimbursement of costs incurred by the EPA for oversight of the project. The PRP's agreed to a 14-week period in which to develop the work plan.

The draft work plan, which describes how the ultimate site

Hamilton named Planning Director

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Longtime Wilmington resident Carole Hamilton has been named as the town's new Director of Planning & Conservation.

"Ms. Hamilton is no stranger to Wilmington, having lived, worked, and volunteered in the community for many years prior to her move to Salem in 1999," said Town Manager Michael Cairra, who made the appointment.

Hamilton holds a Bachelors Degree in English from Keuka College in Keuka Park, New York and has completed her course work for a Master's Degree in urban and environmental policy at Tufts University in Medford.

For the past ten years she has been an associate with the consulting firm of Community Opportunities Group, Inc., which specializes in Planning and Grant Administration.

"In that capacity she has worked with communities throughout New England on grants administration, community planning, affordable housing initiatives and project management," Cairra said.

Wilmington Town Common

Summer concert series kicks off

By BREANNA LEIBMAN

WILMINGTON - Wilmington's traditional "Concerts on the Common" series has begun its 27th year.

This year, Recreation Director Deborah Cipriani has worked with local sponsors to put together the "Sounds of Summer" every Wednesday evening on the Town Common in Wilmington. The series began on Wednesday, July 7, with a tribute to Neil Diamond.

The Diamond concert, called "Diamond if Forever - The Paul G. Show," rocked the Common on Wednesday night with the music of Paul Grassia. "Paul G." has been performing for more than 40 years as a solo artist or as a lead singer for various groups. He has perfected the sounds of Neil Diamond into the "Diamond is Forever" show and also does a tribute show to Elvis Presley. He performs shows all over New England, even bringing his talents to nursing homes and hospitals to bring happiness to patients.

"He is wonderful," Cipriani says. "He interacts with the people in the audience and sings with them."

Next up in the series is the "Class of '66" concert on Wednesday, July 14. The "class" is a premier 60's and 70's band that plays classics from those eras. "Classmates" include Sam Donato (lead vocals/percussion), Ed Dupont (bass/vocals), Michael Pohas

"TIPS" ARE LOOKING GOOD

Slight hints of inflation may not alarm Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, but investors are looking even more kindly at Treasury Inflation Protection Securities, or TIPS. These securities, issued by the federal government, return a set interest rate to the investor. Unlike ordinary bonds, however, the principal gains in value along with the Consumer Price Index.

Total return on these securities has been better than regular Treasury bonds. The TIPS have a 10-year maturity, but other versions - 5- or 20-years - are expected.

Another inflation-protection option is the I bond, which adjusts the interest rate rather than the principal. These are more liquid than TIPS. After five years, they can be turned in for bonds with a higher yield. Also, no taxes are due until the bonds are redeemed. With TIPS, as with zero-coupon bonds, taxes are due annually on the "phantom" interest credited to owners.

Wilmington and the Great Depression

Starting next week, John F. Maguire, Jr. will join the Town Crier's staff of columnists with his autobiographical account of growing up in Wilmington during the Great Depression. Maguire, now a Wayland resident, invites you to join him for a local look at the Great Depression through the eyes of someone who lived the experience.

Letter to the Editor

Help save old growth forests

Dear Editor:

The state of Massachusetts has over three million acres of forest land, and about three thousand six hundred acres of that land is made up of old-growth forests. The amount of land left that is made up of old-growth forests represents approximately one-tenth of Massachusetts' forest land. The old-growth forests that are left are located in inaccessible areas like the Berkshire region. Most of the forests we have left in Massachusetts are second generation, meaning that they were cut down at some point. This is what makes old-growth forests so special. They have been left untouched by civilization and have been shaped by nature and have developed over centuries. The old-growth forests have become rare because of the way civilization had needed to grow, but they support such a diversity of plant and animal life.

On July 31st, the officials of Massachusetts will vote on a bill that will allow reserves to protect these remaining old-growth forests. These reserves would also protect any forest that have the capacity to become an old-growth forest in the future. The forests would still be open for recreational activities such as hiking, hunting, and fishing, but the activities that would be prohibited include new commercial, industrial, roadway development, or timber cutting. Any violations of this bill, if passed, would end in a fine up to $25,000. These reserves that will be set up are going to try and prevent a sudden destruction of the old-growth forests seeing as most of Massachusetts' old-growth forests have been depleted.

Please contact your local senator and representative either by writing a letter or making a phone call to convince them to help pass this bill.

A Nightmare About Wilmington

Had a nightmare the other night,
About my deceased Wilmington,
What a horrible sight.
T'was the year, TWO THOUSAND TWO,
Hate to imagine my dream ever coming true.
Just imagine, NO TOWN,
Then visualize, NO PEOPLE,
DEAD TREES, and no VEGETATION,
Surrounding a Magnificent leaning steeple,
Just MILES and MILES of ugly buildings,
With POLLUTION all around,
Where once was my PRECIOUS Wilmington,
Stood a BLEAK, BARREN, DESERTED, INDUSTRIAL CITY...
Oh, what a horrible sight!!!
Didn't dare close my eyes,
For the rest of the night . . .

Live and Let Live

Signs around town create visions,
Visions of vultures,
Perched to STEAL their prey.
Disrespectful visions of injustice,
Signs around town...
Misinterpretation of freedom.
OF JUSTICE FOR ALL...
Signs around town of unjust GREED...
Uncaring of the rites of others...
Unaware of BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS of YEARS of loving, caring, faithful, toil...
Struggling just to survive, SUNRISE to SUNSET and BEYOND...
Unappreciated,disrespected, cheated,
Time stolen by unjust intrusion.
Oh Lord, banish those SIGNS around town...
Show respect and let's just,
LIVE AND LET LIVE...

Standing Eight Count

by Stephen Bjork

According to a June 2, 2004 report by the Associated Press (sent to me by alert reader and admitted Standing 8 fan, Blanche O'Neil), a mother and son team was arrested and charged with conspiracy to commit a felony and the attempted extortion of the fine people at a Cracker Barrel restaurant in Newport News, Virginia.

The AP report states that the woman claimed to have found a mouse in her soup while celebrating Mother's Day at the ill-fated Cracker Barrel and subsequently attempted to shake down the company for some dough to the tune of $500,000.

"The discovery prompted the 500-store chain to stop serving vegetable soup nationwide, but a company investigation discovered the mouse did not originate from the Cracker Barrel kitchen," the AP reported.

My compliments first of all to Cracker Barrel for reacting the way that they did. A mouse is not a vegetable and should never be found in a vegetable soup - it defeats the whole purpose. Hell, if it was beef minestrone, it wouldn't be so bad.

Apparently, these two troublemakers brought their own dead mouse to the restaurant with them and then dropped it into the soup. Sounds to me like they had it planned in advance.

According to the story, the woman claimed to have already eaten some of her soup before discovering the mouse. That leads to one of two conclusions - either the son had no way of paying for the Mother's Day feast and slipped the mouse into mom's soup without her knowledge, or she knew about the mouse and showed an incredible amount of commitment, not to mention intestinal fortitude, to the scam.

I really enjoy the fact that the perpetrators are a mother and son team and that it occurred on Mother's Day weekend. Let's, just for fun, assume it was Junior, who was listed as being 20 years of age, that came up with the full-proof plan - what glorious maternal pride that woman must have felt.

"Mom, you taught me everything I know and you've made me into the man that stands before you today. Happy Mother's Day. I've got a dead mouse - let's go to Cracker Barrel."

The story takes a rather disturbing twist when the rodent's cause of death was determined by CSI (the original, not that stupid CSI Miami) to be a result of food poisoning.

"We learned that the mouse died from a fractured skull before it entered the soup," the AP quoted Cracker Barrel spokeswoman Julie Davis saying.

So now, not only are these two appearing guilty of being con-artists, they have shown an alarming propensity for violence. What do you say when you "whack" a mouse for such a purpose.

"You are going to be sleeping with the oyster crackers."

Killing the mouse ahead of time was definitely their downfall. Man, are they stupid. Everyone knows you have to bring a healthy mouse with you (tell him he is going to get a piece of the score) and then drown him in your soup when the waiter isn't looking.

Well, everyone makes mistakes. I myself was once caught trying to pull off a similar job, but I got the whole thing backwards. I poured lentil soup all over a mouse at the pet store and claimed I found him that way. I demanded a mere $200,000, but nobody was willing to pay and I'm not allowed to go to that pet store anymore.

What really made it rough was when Jim Sokolov took the mouse's case and sued me for everything I had.

The truth is, I've never been very good at crime. With the price of gasoline on the rise, I had heard about a recent proliferation of "Pump & Runs" occurring around the country. I figured I would give it a try, but apparently you are supposed to pump the gas and then leave without paying. Every station I went to had a pay first policy, so I ended up paying and running before pumping my gas.

This went on for a full week before I figured out why I kept running out of gas and money.

In other news, the AP reported on July 6th that female rice farmers in southwestern Nepal are tending to their crops in the nude because they have been told that it would please the rain god and would end the dry spell.

According to Expedia.com, a last minute ticket from Boston to Katmandu, Nepal runs about $5,113.

If this, so-called, rain god is truly pleased by the prospect of naked female farmers, then why would he make it rain? Once it rains, the women put their clothes back on, right? How stupid do they think this rain god is?

The AP quoted a 35-year old female farmer (who likes long walks on the beach and sincere people, but is really turned off by people who don't believe in rain gods) that it was her mother-in-law's idea. Her mother-in-law deserves a round of applause.

Forecasters in Katmandu are predicting that the weather should improve in the next few days, but did not make any specific suggestions on whether or not it was safe for the female farmers to return to full farming attire.

RAD program built confidence

Dear Editor:

In March I read an article the Crier published about a free basic self-defense course, (RAD), run by the Wilmington Police Department. I signed up for the class and wanted to share my experience with your readers.

The course started on a Monday night with 12 women ranging in age from 17 to over 50. Myself, I'm 34. The first class involved an overview of the course, which included information, considerations and tactics that would be useful for encounters or attacks. The program stressed risk reduction as well as avoidance strategies.

The second and third classes consisted of hands on defense and strike moves. The instructors showed us basic moves to protect ourselves from a sexual or physical attack. The physical skills they teach are meant to disable an attacker long enough for you to get away.

The last class was all about realistic simulation. All of us got to test the skills we learned. Our primary objective was to escape. In order to do this we had to fight our way past the aggressors using any or all of the techniques we practiced in the last two classes. We punched, kicked and elbow-smashed the instructors with all our might. It was the most empowering thing I have ever experienced.

Going into the class I didn't expect much, but learned more than I ever anticipated. I am only 5 feet tall and never thought I would be able to defend myself against a six-foot aggressor. I recommend every woman take this course, especially any high school student going off to college. The RAD program gave me confidence in my ability to protect myself if I ever found myself in a threatening situation. What's so great about this course is that it supplies you with permanent self-defense. No matter where you go or whom you're with, you've got personal weapons, your hands and feet.

I would like to "verbalize" my thanks to the RAD instructors, Officers Steve LaRivee, Brian Moon, Julie Brisbois and Butch Alpers for everything they taught me. Thank you.

Restrict development until water problems solved

Dear Editor:

Your article quotes Town Water Department Manager Michael Woods as saying that the department is capable of supporting even more new construction, even though the town's Water Management Permit stipulates all kinds of restrictions on current use. The town of Wilmington has added 2 huge, high density apartment complexes in the last 5 years.

Either there is sufficient water now or we do not have enough for extensive new high density development.

New, high density development should be restricted until the water supply problem is solved.

MAKING LESS OF AN IMPACT

Over three million vehicles in this country are involved in side-impact collisions annually. These types of crashes pose more risk for riders than front or rear collisions because the sides of vehicles absorb less energy from the impacts. Fortunately, recent research reports that side impact bags are very effective at doing the job that they were designed to do - protect the head and body during side-impact crashes. It should be pointed out, however, that side air bags designed to protect the head and torso were much more protective than torso-only side air bags. The reason for this is that torso-only air bags do not protect as well against head injuries, which are responsible for 40% - 75% of deaths in side-impact crashes. New advances in auto technology are encouraging for driver safety.

The Jimmy Fund

Local cyclists join the Pan-Mass Challenge

Twelve residents of Tewksbury and five residents of Wilmington will ride in the 25th annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), the nation's most successful bike-a-thon for charity, on August 7 and 8. Alone or in teams, athletes or amateurs, strong or weak, they ride to accomplish a single, unified goal - a world without cancer.

Nearly 4,000 cyclists from 40 states and six countries will ride in the PMC to raise $17 million, bringing the total contributed to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund to more than $120 million. The PMC's annual contribution funds lifesaving cancer research and care for cancer patients around the globe. More than 160 PMC participants are cancer survivors or current patients while others ride in honor of a friend or family member fighting the disease. "Unfortunately, everyone has a connection to cancer in some way," says Billy Starr, PMC founder and executive director. "The PMC gives people a way to channel thankfulness for effective treatment or grief over lost loved ones into positive energy that helps others."

Since its inception in 1980, the PMC has become the most efficient athletic fundraising event in the country, donating 93 cents of every dollar to the Jimmy Fund. Cyclists are required to raise between $1,750 and $2,750 to ride, depending on the chosen route. The average cyclist raises $4,300.

The PMC, presented by the Boston Red Sox, offers six different routes, traveling through 46 Massachusetts towns over one or two days, covering between 89 and 192 miles. Two-day rides include the original 192 mile Sturbridge-to-Provincetown route; 186-mile Sturbridge-Bourne-Wellesley route; 169-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Provincetown route. One-day riders choose between 108 mile Sturbridge-Bourne route, and the 89 mile Wellesley-Bourne route.

To become a volunteer, a virtual rider, or make a financial contribution to a rider from your town, visit www.pmc.org or call (800) WE-CYCLE. Checks can be made payable to PMC, 77 Fourth Ave., Needham, MA 02494.

Sons of Italy presents Law and Justice Awards

Order Sons of Italy in America Grand Lodge of Massachusetts and the Commission for Social Justice recently honored three people of Italian heritage at their Annual Law and Justice Day Breakfast at the Burlington Marriott Hotel.

These individuals, State Senate President Robert E. Travaglini, United States Marshall Anthony Dichio, and Honorable Rudolph A. Sacco, were recognized for their dedication to Public Service, Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

The Commission for Social Justice is a local chapter of the National Commission for Social Justice of the Order Sons of Italy in America. Its goals are to insure equal concerns, treatment, respect, and opportunity for all people. Its chief nemesis is the stereotyping of ethnic, racial and religious groups as unjustly depicted by the mass media.

The Law Day Breakfast is an annual event which honors people of Italian American heritage who, through their accomplishments, have defied the negative portrayals that are so evident on TV and in Hollywood films.

Speakers at this event included Order Sons of Italy in America Grand Lodge of Massachusetts State President Kevin Cairra, a member of the Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli Lodge in Wilmington and resident of Haverhill, MA. Toastmaster and Chairman of the Social Justice Commission was John DiFava of Wilmington.

James V. DiPaola, the Sheriff of Middlesex County, introduced and presented the Public Service Award to State Senate President Robert E. Travaglini. Senate President Travaglini began his work in the public sector in the mid 70's as Executive Assistant in the State Attorney General's Office. He worked at a similar position in the Mayor's office before his 1984 election to Boston City Council. Elected to the State Senate in 1992, he eventually became State Senate President, the first Italian American ever to hold this position.

Robert A. "Ted" Tomasone, Clerk/Magistrate of the Somerville District Court, introduced and presented the Law Enforcement Award to United States Marshall Anthony Dichio. Mr. Dichio began his career in 1980, with the State Police. After being trained in special areas of law enforcement and protection, he became responsible for the safety of several Massachusetts governors including Weld, Cellucci, and Swift. After twenty-two years with the State Police, Mr. Dichio retired with distinction and honor. In 2002, he was appointed as a U.S. Marshall by George W. Bush. His function is to oversee the federal operations in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The presentation of the Criminal Justice Award to Judge Sacco was made by Judge Peter W. Agnes, Jr., Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court. Judge Sacco dedicated 25 years building a distinguished career on the bench of the Massachusetts Probate Court. Throughout his career and in his retirement Judge Sacco generously committed his time and efforts to many civic organizations. You drink and drive, you lose WILMINGTON - A statewide crackdown on drunk driving is in effect between now and July 11.

The crime of drunk driving kills someone every 30 minutes in America. Of the 459 motor vehicle-related fatalities in Massachusetts in 2002, almost half involved alcohol.

These facts are why the Wilmington Police Department is joining more than 300 Massachusetts law enforcement agencies in support of the initiative called "You Drink & Drive. You Lose."

The Wilmington Police Department recommends that if you host a party where alcohol will be available, offer non-alcoholic beverages and food to prevent drinking from becoming the focus of your gathering. Do not tolerate underage drinking on your property as you may be held liable under the commonwealth's "social host" law. If you are heading out to an event and plan to consume alcohol, be sure to designate a sober driver or plan to use a taxi or take mass transit. Impaired driving is a serious crime that could cost you your freedom, your job, your license, and kill or injure you and innocent people. To prevent, as well as apprehend drunk or drugged drivers, the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau is providing $460,000 of traffic enforcement grants to state and local police during this You Drink & Drive. You Lose. Mobilization. More than 14,000 people are arrested annually for drunk driving in Massachusetts. A first time drunk driving conviction can cost more than $10,000.

GIVING THEIR TIME, HEART AND ASSISTANCE. Gary Molgard, Todd Chen, Nancy Molgard and Sheila Nason are four of the five volunteers from Wilmington's First Baptists Church who will spend two weeks this summer in Guyana. Chen is a graduate of Wilmington High School's Class of 2004.

Wilmington volunteers headed to Guyana

WILMINGTON

Wilmington's First Baptist Church is preparing to send five compassionate individuals to Guyana for two weeks of the summer to perform humanitarian services in remote areas of South America. The group, ranging in age from 18 to senior citizen, will donate their vacation time, financial resources and toil to benefit natives of Bartica and Parika. Bartica is a mining village and Parika is a fishing village - both located to the west of Guyana's capital city of Georgetown.

This year's Guyana trip is a joint effort between First Baptist Church and partners Global Outreach (Mississippi) and Christian Service Brigade Frontier Camp (Maine). Scheduled for mid July, the trip will leverage individual's talents and abilities to carry out a number of projects including boat repair, well digging, furniture construction, a medical clinic, health education seminars and vacation bible school.

The First Baptist Church's Missions Team is led by Gary and Nancy Molgard. They have had a passion for mission work for over thirty years. Their first mission trip together, to the poor hillside village of Alto Cochabamba, Bolivia was undertaken with an infant child and ended up lasting two years. Since that trip, the Molgards have shared their heart for helping others with members of the First Baptist Church, leading short-term mission trips to Haiti and Mexico.

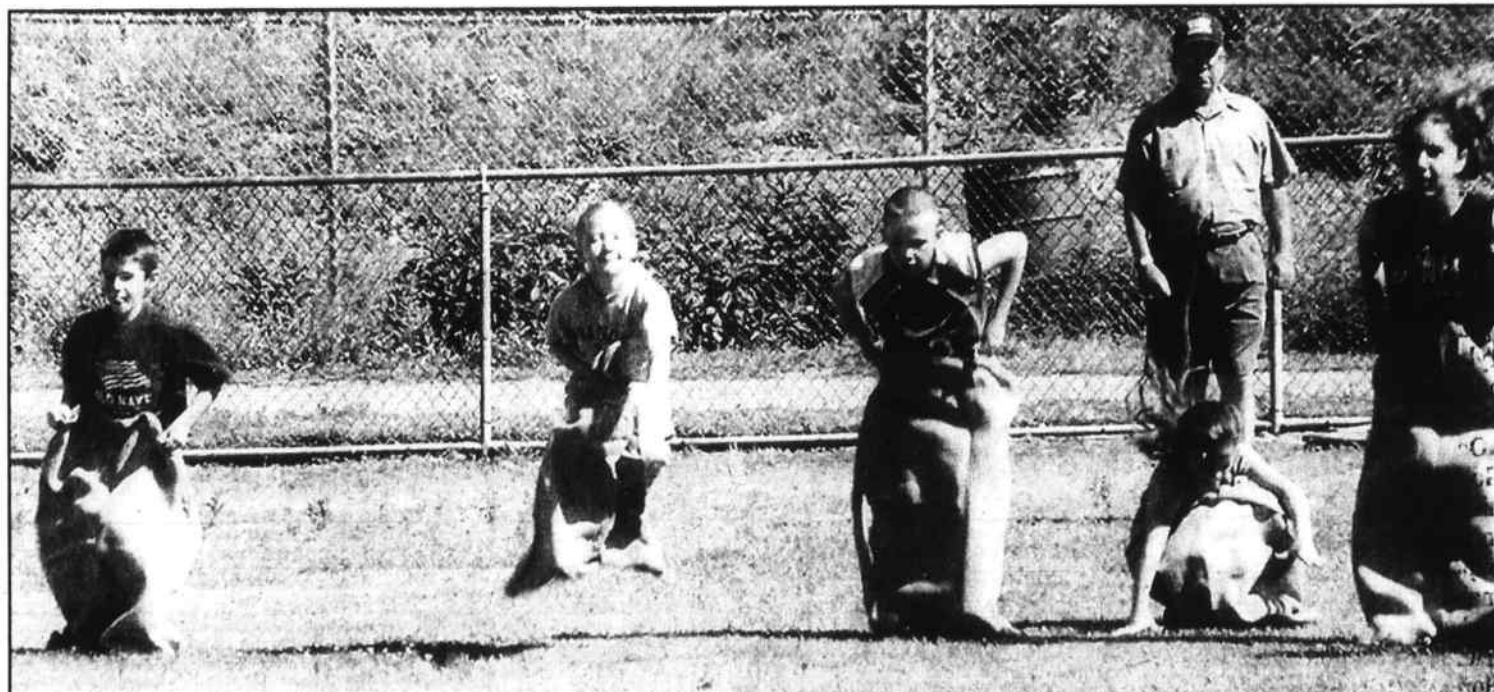

In 2002, the Molgards led an effort to once again help the people of Alto Cochabamba. The village had a desperate need for a children's nursery to give working parents a safe place for their children.

Mothers were routinely leaving toddlers, even infants, unattended because they had to work to keep food on the table. The First Baptist Church was able to help establish the Broombush Nursery, which now serves 50 youngsters and is looking to expand. Others at the First Baptist Church have shared the spirit to reach beyond the local borders by teaching English as a second language in Lowell and working with church renewal projects in southern Maine.

Gary Molgard notes, "A mission experience broadens a person's understanding of what God is doing in different cultures. It stretches and deepens individuals, challenging them to be more effective here in their own community." Gary and Nancy have certainly lived out that model. In addition to their missionary work and their own five children, the Molgards have raised many foster children since settling in Wilmington. Nancy also worked for many years as a kindergarten teacher at the Abundant Life Christian School - serving hundreds of local youth in that capacity prior to her retirement in 2002.

Donations for the Guyana trip would be greatly appreciated to help defray a portion of the individual's expenses. Your tax-deductible contribution will help change lives from Wilmington to the far-off villages of South America. Please send your checks written to First Baptist Church to 173 Church Street, Wilmington MA 01887, Attention: Summer Missions Project. For further information, contact the church at 978-658-8584.

ON YOUR MARK, GET SET . . . And so went a handful of Tewksbury youngsters, racing across a stretch of the field at Livingston Street Park with only potato sacks to get them to the finish line on the 4th of July.

Answers surface in Marino fatality

By STEPHEN BJORK

TEWKSBURY - Charges have been filed in the tragic death of Tewksbury resident Anthony Marino, who perished in a vehicular accident a little more than two weeks ago.

Marino was pronounced dead at Saints Memorial Hospital on Sunday, June 20, due to head injuries sustained during a car accident that occurred in Billerica. The previously unidentified driver of the vehicle, in which Marino was a passenger, brought him directly to Saints Memorial following the incident.

An anonymous tip to the Town

Crier identified the driver of the vehicle as James Dorr of Lowell. The Billerica Police Department confirmed Dorr as the driver this week. Dorr has been charged with committing vehicular homicide, leaving the scene of a vehicular accident that resulted in death, and driving to endanger.

Billerica Deputy Police Chief Frank Mackenzie states that a number of details surrounding the tragedy are still vague. Initial reports, however, indicate that Marino was leaning out of the passenger's side of the vehicle because he was getting sick. While Marino's upper body was outside of the vehicle, Dorr reportedly swerved off the road, at which point Marino struck a telephone pole.

According to Mackenzie, officers have found no evidence that alcohol or impairment were factors in the accident.

"It is a terrible tragedy that ended a friendship of 15 years," Mackenzie said. "These men were very good friends. Our sympathies go out to both families."

According to Mackenzie, Dorr rushed to Saints Memorial, instead of stopping and calling for an ambulance, because he was trying to seek the quickest medical attention for his friend.

Marino, 35, was a manager of the automotive department at the Tewksbury Wal-Mart.

the West School reclaim its academic roots by housing the Alumni Association.

"Maybe half office space and half museum," West said.

A number of municipal uses for the building have been proposed, such as a meeting place for community groups, a site for town municipal committee meetings, and town museum collection exhibits.

According to Town Manager Michael Cairra, funds will be used to bring the current electric, plumbing, and heating conditions up to code standards. Interior walls, the ceiling, and flooring will be rehabbed as well.

"In general, the money will be used to remodel the interior of the school," Cairra said. "There has been talk also of the installation of a new septic system."

The initial estimate for the necessary work is $80,000. Shawsheen Vocational High School has committed to performing a great deal of the work needed at no cost to the town.

The Conference Committee Report, after receiving approval from both the House and Senate, was signed by Governor Mitt Romney on Friday, June 25.

(drums, vocals), Gary Brewer (guitar/vocals), and Doug Tybor (keyboards/vocals). The band has rocked the classics in New England for 25 years.

On Wednesday, July 21 "Rick Goldin" will take the stage with his lively songs for kids. Goldin incorporates music, humor and puppets into a show that will make children want to get up and sing and dance. His puppet friends include Henry the Horse and Quackberry Duck, among others. He has been performing for more than 20 years and has earned a Parents' Choice Recommended Award.

"This is our first kids act in years," Cipriani says. "It brings a little something for everyone."

Ending the summer series are the "Continental" on Wednesday, July 28. The 16-piece band performs swing classics from the eras of Big Band, jazz and pop, a span of time that stretches from the 1930s through the 1990s.

"We have had them for years," Cipriani says. "They're great." Each show is sponsored by local businesses. Without these sponsors, the Wilmington Recreation Department would not be able to pay for these bands to come to town to play. "Diamond is Forever" was sponsored by the Dunkin Donuts/Baskin Robbins at 195 Main Street and the Dunkin Donuts at 321 Main Street. The "Class of '66" show has multiple sponsors: Analog Devices; C.C. & Sons Builders; Citizens Bank; HHR Insurance; Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank; Massbank of Wilmington; and Textron. Rick Goldin's visit is sponsored by the Reading Co-operative Bank, whereas "The Continentals" are being sponsored by the Wilmington Arts Council.

"These sponsors have been overwhelmingly generous,"

Cipriani states.

The 90-minute concerts start on the Town Common at 6:30 p.m. Depending on the weather, shows in the past have been known to attract anywhere between 100 and 200 people. Ample parking and restrooms are available across the street from the Common at the 4th of July Building on Middlesex Avenue. The restrooms are handicapped accessible.

In the event of rain, signs will be posted in town to alert residents about any cancellations. To find out when cancelled concerts have been rescheduled, call the Recreation Department at 978-658-4270.

Cipriani is hoping that these concerts, which start earlier in the evening than the ones held in previous summers, will bring families and friends out.

"Bring a picnic or a light supper," she says, "Just relax and listen to the music."

Hamilton spent several years as an Executive Vice President with Simmons Associates, Ltd, a real estate appraisal and consulting firm prior to her current employment.

From 1974 through 1991, Hamilton was the Library Administrator for Tufts University's Wessell Library. Prior to that, she taught for the Wilmington School System.

Hamilton and her late husband, Robert, the longtime, respected head of the Wilmington High School English Department, raised two children in town.

While a Wilmington resident, Ms. Hamilton served for 17 years as a member of the Wilmington Planning Board and acted as its chairperson for several of those years.

According to Cairra, "She was instrumental in the formulation of the Affordable Housing Task Force, the forerunner of the Wilmington Housing Partnership. She served as a member of the Partnership from 1988 to 1999 and served as Chairperson for most of her tenure on that committee."

Lynn Duncan, Wilmington's current Director of Planning & Conservation, offered her resignation last month to accept the position of City Planner/Community Development Director with the City of Salem.

"Lynn Duncan's departure presents a significant challenge to her successor," Cairra said. "For over 13 years, Lynn has worked hard to ensure that Wilmington has met its responsibilities in a myriad of development and planning areas."

Duncan's last day with Wilmington was on July 2. Hamilton begins work on August 9. Assistant Planning and Conservation Director Robert Douglas will serve as Acting Director in the interim.

"I am confident that Ms. Hamilton's background and experience, particularly her many years of service to the Wilmington community, uniquely qualify her for this important position," Cairra said. "I look forward to working with Carole to meet the many challenges associated with the town's housing, planning, environmental, and economic development responsibilities."

remedy will be selected, provides for the testing of gas, soil and groundwater from selected areas near the landfill, and water and sediments from Sutton Brook, according to Richard Doherty, the President of Engineering & Consulting Resources, Inc. Doherty is acting as a consultant for the group TOXIC (Townpeople Organized Against Illness and Contamination).

"The work plan assumes that the ultimate solution for the landfill itself will be leaving the buried wastes in place," Doherty said.

The existing waste, in such a circumstance, will be covered with a protective cap to prevent rainwater from seeping through.

"Although this solution is consistent with EPA policy for municipal landfill Superfund sites, many are concerned that chemical wastes were buried within the landfill, possibly below the water table," Doherty said. "If this is the case, the proposed solution may not prevent these wastes from continuing to travel away from the landfill."

Doherty and area residents are most concerned about the possibility that metal drums containing toxic wastes may still remain under the landfill.

More than 1,100 drums that contained, or had at one time contained, chemical wastes were located in 1999 and were subsequently removed from three areas in the immediate vicinity of the landfill.

No efforts are included in the draft for investigating the possible existence of additional drums. According to Doherty, magnetic methods could be used to locate metal objects under the ground, but the costs involved with investigating the entire site would be prohibitive. Only with specific information on particular areas would it be likely that investigative measures be taken.

Susan Sinclair, the CEO of TOXIC, is hoping that former workers of the landfill, eyewitnesses, or any other knowledgeable persons with information regarding any such existing wastes will step forward.

"We urge anyone who has knowledge of disposal of drums and chemical wastes to come forward," Sinclair said. "If nobody does, then the wastes will stay buried forever."

The EPA is currently reviewing the work plan. A revised work plan will be issued if the EPA deems it necessary.

The Town of Tewksbury, which has been named as one of the 25 PRP's, recently submitted an article at Town Meeting to borrow funds to meet its financial obligations to the site. Residents approved the article, which now has to go through the state legislative process. State Representative James Miceli filed the bill as a Home Rule Petition.

Miceli has met repeatedly with Sinclair, former TOXIC CEO Judy Fittery, Patricia Pelosi and other community activists to discuss the issue.

"I believe this legislation is important to keep the process moving," Miceli said.

"Tewksbury must be able to meet its financial obligation on this matter, and this is the avenue the town and voters chose to take. One of my top priorities is the clean-up of this Superfund site as quickly and efficiently as possible. I commend those that dedicate so much of their time and effort to make sure that happens, such as Sue Sinclair, Judy Fittery, and Patricia Pelosi."

Rocco's Landfill was used as an open burning dump beginning in 1957. It committed numerous violations of local and state regulations and accepted industrial and chemical wastes despite its authorization to accept only municipal waste.

Rocco's was officially closed in 1982, but continued to operate and accept wastes until 1986 and possibly later. The site was added to the federal Superfund list in July of 2000 as the result of countless hours of work by area residents.

Blaze claims trailer

By STEPHEN BJORK

TEWKSBURY - Firefighters were called to 16 Berkeley Street on Sunday evening to battle a fire which had engulfed a trailer home.

The Tewksbury Fire Department received a call about the fire at 9:58 p.m. on July 4. Firefighters got the blaze under control within half an hour, but afterwards crews remained on the scene for more than an hour to overhaul the situation.

"The trailer was a total loss," said Tewksbury Fire Captain Michael Hazel.

According to Captain Hazel, the cause of the fire is unknown at this point. Hazel would not speculate on a possible cause of the blaze, stating only that the matter is still under investigation.

The State Fire Marshall has been alerted and is assisting the Tewksbury Fire Department in its investigation.

The owner of the trailer home, a single man whose identity was not released by the fire department, was not home at the time of the fire.

No injuries occurred during the incident. According to Hazel, however, a neighboring trailer did sustain slight fire and smoke damage.

Two Tewksbury fire engines responded to the scene and were assisted by two of Billerica's engines.

Merrill hoping to get back into the football Storm

By MATT KALMAN
Sports Correspondent

Recently engaged to Jeff Heroux of Chelmsford, Wilmington resident Melissa Merrill has too much on her plate and too little time to join the New England Storm of the Women's Professional Football League this summer.

In addition to her nuptial plans and her job as a residential counselor at the Robert F. Kennedy Children's Action Corps' Fay A. Rotenberg School in North Chelmsford, Merrill recently took a second job at a veterinarian's office.

But that doesn't mean Merrill doesn't value the season she enjoyed with the Storm last summer.

"It was awesome," said the 25-year-old Merrill. "It was one of the best times of my life. The whole rush of the game and the excitement and the crowd watching you."

The 5-foot-6 Merrill played fullback and middle linebacker for the 4-6 Storm in 2003. Her best experience on the field occurred on offense.

"When I first started, I didn't know what position I was going to play," Merrill said. "All my guy friends said I should go for quarterback or I should be on the line. Once I started playing, I loved both (fullback and linebacker). My first touchdown I scored was in New York and it was just amazing. I never thought I'd score a touchdown. It was a rush from like 7 yards and it was just cool because I was going through people and I could feel when I was just one step away and then I got it."

A newcomer to the gridiron, Merrill impressed her team enough to earn the title of captain.

"That was awesome," said Merrill. "That was great. I never expected that."

Merrill excelled in basketball, volleyball, softball and track while she was at Shawsheen Tech in Billerica.

"Basketball was always my favorite, but I was better at volleyball," admitted Merrill.

She then started her collegiate career at UMass Amherst before transferring to UMass Lowell.

At Lowell, Merrill enjoyed playing pickup basketball and some rugby (she met her fiancée on the rugby field). Merrill earned an undergraduate degree in psychology and her master's in criminal justice. In her last year as an undergrad, Merrill started working at the Rotenberg School and she's now been there two years and three months.

The Rotenberg School is one of nine RFK Children's Action Corps residential programs in the state. The only long-term secure treatment program in Massachusetts for girls working in conjunction with the Department of Youth Services, the Rotenberg School cares for 16 girls at a time. Some of the girls in residence have been charged with crimes ranging from theft to violence against others and even more serious crimes. Many of the youth are challenged by a variety of emotional, psychological, biological, environmental and social issue, which in many cases have led to their delinquent behavior.

"It's definitely tough," Merrill said. "Especially right now, there's a bunch of kids that don't want to get it. It's actually really rewarding when the kids get in the program and get the help they need and go out and take college courses and stuff."

"There's been more downfalls than successes, but there have been quite a few successes."

Merrill generally works the night shift and assists the residents with evening activities.

"When I started in psychology, I didn't think it'd be like this. But I always wanted to work with kids," said Merrill.

Although her work schedule is demanding, Merrill still keeps in shape with her own workouts when she has spare time. She also stays involved with sports by coaching two youth basketball teams at the YMCA in Lowell.

Should things become a little less hectic next summer, she hopes to don football pads again with the Storm. And as often as she can, Merrill plans to support the Storm this summer.

"I definitely can't wait to go back (to the team)," Merrill said. "They have my full support and any games I can make, I'll be there rooting them on."

High School football begins, September 10

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Thanks to the help of the three local high school coaches, the upcoming fall football schedules for Wilmington, Tewksbury and Shawsheen Tech appear in this week's paper.

All three teams have limited changes to the annual 11-game schedules. Wilmington has two changes to this year's schedule. They will not play Andover in a non-league game, while the 'Cats also do not play Ipswich this season. Instead, the 'Cats have games against Lawrence, who is joining the Cape Ann League for football only this fall, as well as taking on North Reading after several years of the Hornets going independent.

The 'Cats have six home games this season and five road contests. Of their 11 games, eight of them are on Friday night, with two Saturday afternoon games, and of course the Thanksgiving morning game.

Usually Wilmington is tested right away facing some of the iron in the early weeks, and it seems as if the latter half of the schedule is much more difficult. In the final five games of the season, Wilmington will face Pentucket, Triton, Masconomet, North Andover and Tewksbury. The 'Cats do open the season on Friday, September 10th in a rematch of last year's thrilling overtime loss to Hamilton-Wenham at home beginning at 7:00.

Besides Hamilton-Wenham, Wilmington will host Newburyport, Lynnfield, Triton, Masconomet and Tewksbury. Their five road contests will be against Amesbury, Lawrence, North Reading, Pentucket and North Andover - thus only two long trips in the car to Pentucket and Amesbury which isn't all that bad.

Tewksbury also opens its season on the same night, Friday, September 10th on the road against Tyngsboro. The Redmen played only ten games last year because just two weeks before the season started Cambridge backed out of the non-league game. Because of that mess, Tewksbury picked up non-league game against Commonwealth Athletic Conference powerhouse Tyngsboro, who will have a new coach this season.

Tewksbury's schedule this season is very interesting. The Redmen start the season on the road for the first five games of the season and do not play at Doucette Field until October 16th. Tewksbury will travel to Tyngsboro and Wakefield for two non-league games before the MVC league schedule opens with contests at Andover, Billerica and Lowell. Then the Redmen will host their next four games with Dracut, Methuen, Haverhill and Chelmsford. The last two games of the season are back on the road with Central Catholic and Wilmington.

For traveling, only the first game, a Friday night in Tyngsboro will be rough as all of the other games are close by.

Shawsheen Tech opens its season on Sunday, September 12th against Arlington Catholic at Minuteman Tech beginning at 1:30. Arlington Catholic's field is being redone so the non-league game will be played at a neutral site. The Rams are on the road for six games this season and home for the other five. Besides the game against Arlington Catholic, Shawsheen will travel to Whittier Tech, North Shore, Algonquin, Greater Lawrence and Tyngsboro. Shawsheen will host Millis, Manchester, Minuteman, Lynn Tech and Greater Lowell on Turkey Day morning.

Shawsheen seems to also have a tougher schedule in the final weeks of the season. The middle of the schedule doesn't seem all that bad, but the final four games are against Algonquin (non-league), Greater Lawrence, Tyngsboro and Greater Lowell, with three of them on the road.

Also, the Town Crier is searching for several correspondents to cover local high school sports, including football. If you are interested, please call 978-658-2346 or send an email to: jamie@yourtown-crier.com.

For complete listings of all three of the team's schedules, please look inside this edition.

Red Sox have the talent, just no desire

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA

Ah, isn't it great to be a Red Sox fan? It's not quite yet the All-Star break and, so far, the Sox are in late-season form. It isn't looking good. But there is no need to press the panic button just yet. There is still much baseball to be played. And even the Yankees aren't exactly the Yankees of old. Another reason why this season hasn't been the year we've wanted it to be. The Yankees have played lackluster baseball. Still the Sox are 7.5 games out of first place. Okay, we can't say that this season is a lost cause yet; it is way too early for that kind of talk. But some guys have to get the ship righted, and fast.

With the lackluster play of late, who should the blame be directed at? The players? Not all of it. The front office? The Manager? None of them have been up to snuff either. General Manager Theo Epstein and co-owners John Henry and Larry Lucchino have gone out and put this team in a position to win. There is no reason for this team to achieve anything less than a World Series. This team was built for the post-season. But so far, it's getting top the post-season that's the tough part. Again, it is very early in the season to judge if their play so far will dictate how the season ends. But from a fan's point of view, the Red Sox, as an entire team, haven't been upholding their end of the deal.

Some of the Sox pre-season moves are paying off handsomely. Pokey Reese has been everything the Sox wanted and more. He has been playing superb defense and has even been hitting at a decent clip this year. Mark Bellhorn is the unsung hero of this team. He has filled in where he's been needed and played very well. He has matched, if not bettered, Todd Walker's output of last year. Pitchers Curt Schilling and Keith Foulke have done what they were expected to do. Schilling wins games, and Foulke saves them. And they've been very effective at this.

Last year's acquisitions have, for the most part, done well. David Ortiz has been nothing short of great. At the plate, Ortiz makes it hard for opposing pitchers to have any breathing room knowing Manny Ramirez is on deck, who is to be followed by Nomar Garciaparra. Bill Mueller, despite being injured for a healthy chunk of the season, has been making contact. Kevin Millar has not been nearly as productive as Ortiz or Mueller. Yet he still manages to do seemingly dozens of commercials. Even some youngsters have been making a name for themselves. Kevin Youkilis has filled in great at third and has instantly become a fan favorite. Bronson Arroyo, despite an ugly record, hasn't pitched badly.

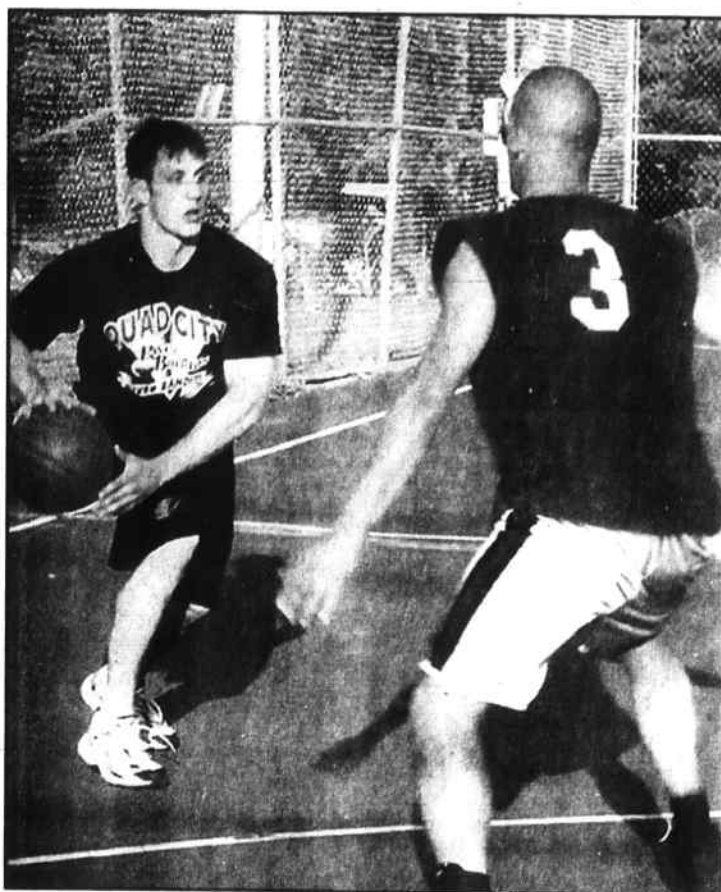

But it seems that the real problem with the Red Sox this year is chemistry. Maybe the Sox brought in too many personalities that might not be gelling like they should be. Of course, tempers rise when you're losing. But with so many impending contract terminations, one can't help but think that maybe players and front office aren't seeing eye to eye. Garciaparra certainly has never publicly shown this much disgust before with his tenure here in Boston. He has been sporting a what-have-you-done-for-me-lately attitude, which doesn't bode well for anyone. But he really has no place to be whining. Manny Ramirez had been at the center of trade talks and he's having the season of his life. Pedro Martinez is always unhappy, it seems. But he isn't the same Pedro. And it really has shown.

So... is this the year? Well, quite honestly, the Sox are holding their own fate. They have got to play better. Perhaps the All-Star break will be a period of regrouping. A time for injuries to heal and feelings to be patched up. This is a wide-open year. It is right there in front of us. But they've got to put aside petty contract disputes. Instead of asking for more millions, why don't they go out and earn their pay? How about the Sox play baseball, strive for the postseason, and focus on the real point of baseball, winning a championship.

At what point in the season will they realize that?

Rage is getting in the middle of sports

By TOM FLANAGAN
Guest Columnist

Rage is a popular emotion these days. It's making a serious run at surpassing joy, sadness, and even the ever-popular guilt.

Rage is everywhere around us. It shows up on the road all the time. It even makes the occasional appearance at the work place. Now, rage is moving up in the world as evident by its recent cameo appearances on airports and in the sky.

Rage is all the rage.

Rage has been seen at sporting events involving young people lately and it is indeed an uninvited guest. Summer is a time to unwind, and few things are more relaxing than spending the afternoon in the park watching a kid's game. For some parents, however, the relaxing ends when the game begins. It seems that, on a weekly basis, there are instances of appalling violence and childish acts committed at youth sporting events.

It's hard to go to a youth soccer game or a Little League baseball game without hearing a coach scream at an official. Or a coach scream at a player. Or a parent scream at a coach. Verbal abuse during youth games is tolerated to a certain extent, either because it is a common practice or because those who hear it are quick to adopt an "it-could-be-worse" attitude.

And it could be.

An infamous example of adults stepping over boundaries occurred about three years ago in Reading, Mass., when one father was beaten to death by another after a dispute over a youth hockey game.

In Pennsylvania, a police officer, volunteering as a Little League coach, was sentenced to 23 months in jail for corruption of a minor after paying a player $2 to intentionally hit another 10-year old with a pitch.

In Nevada, a father provided his son with Ipecac, a vomit-inducing herb, and advised his son to put the substance into a bottle of juice and offer it to football teammates who had teased him. After several players became violently ill, the father was sentenced to house arrest.

While most of the nation has not seen disgruntled parents act out in similarly drastic (or well-publicized) fashion, a trip to a ball field on any given night could shatter one's stereotype of the "soccer mom." The quiet woman who arrived at the park with a minivan full of sliced oranges and giddy children can later unleash a profanity-laced tirade toward an official that would make Chris Rock block his ears.

In fact, instances of ballfield rage have become so prevalent that state legislators have become involved. Earlier this month, Florida lawmakers put into effect stiffer penalties for anyone charged with abusing a game official "verbally or physically." This isn't exactly rocketry, or even programming a VCR for that matter.

The solution is simple. The parents involved in such menacing behavior need to understand the ramifications their actions could have. Not only are children embarrassed, but their desire to participate in sports can dwindle.

The Parents Association for Youth Sports hosts forums on healthy experiences and many leagues are urging coaches and other volunteers to join PAYS or similar organizations. To become a member of PAYS, participants must complete a 30-minute course that includes a training video and discussion. In addition, PAYS has all members sign a code of conduct outlining behavioral standards. Part of the code reads, "I will place the emotional and physical well-being of the children ahead of my personal desire to win." The effort put forth by PAYS and similar organizations should be commended, but even a kid could dispense such simple advice.

Just ask one.

Blue Jays win softball championship

SOFTBALL

Blue Jays Defeat Expos 19-4 to Win Championship

The final playoff game of the season was played this past Monday, between the Rotary Club sponsored Expos and the Sons of Italy sponsored Blue Jays in girls Major League Softball. The Expos bats were quiet this evening. Kristen McNally, Briana Parrow, and Nicole Luz led the Expos on offense. Liz Crannell, Ashley Gonzalez, Emily Crannell, Christine Woods, Courtney See, Shannon Keefe, and Kristi Adley led the Expos defense. The Blue Jays bats came alive this game. Kaitlyn Souza, Brittney McLaughlin, Chelsie Babcock, Charlotte Jensen, Meaghan Souza, Danielle Polcari and Allie Holbert led the Blue Jays hitters this night. The two big hits of the night were a home run by Brittney McLaughlin and a triple by Chelsie Babcock.

The pitching of Chelsie Babcock kept the Expos hitters off balance all game. The Expos had a lone hit this night. The defense was sharp when called upon, with Kaitlyn Souza making three outstanding plays in the field. Erin Crowley, Mikayla Grassia, Angela Maglione and Nikki Sirignano also contributed defensively. The game was a well-played contest for both teams, with some nice defensive plays sprinkled in. The Blue Jays' Erin Crowley was carried off the field with a possible fractured ankle.

Everyone on the Blue Jays and Expos wish her a healthy and speedy recovery. The final score was Blue Jays 19 and the Expos 4.

Minor Softball League
ALL-Star Game

The teams were split up and the girls were assigned to the National league squad or the American league squad. The National league squad was held scoreless in the top of the first on good pitching by Jennifer Stewart and some splendid defense by Kate Kurowski and Rebecca Russo. The American league squad struck quickly for 2 runs in the bottom half of the inning on some good base running and timely hitting from Emily Schuh, Kelly Wilcox, Caitlin McDonough and Robin Hollenbeck. The National league team stormed back in the top of the second. Erin Welch, Casey Brown and Sara Luz scored the three runs with RBI's going to Charlene Sullivan and Taylor Cushing. The Americans went down in order in their half of the second on some great defense by Nicole Lunt, Alexa Brown and Kelly DiCicco.

The National League extended their lead to 5-2 in the top of the third with good hitting and heads up base running from Jillian Hery and Courtney Collins. The Americans came storming back in the bottom of the third to score five runs. Christina Wilson had two RBI's in the inning. Bea Banda led the charge for the Nationals in the fourth where they scored three more runs to take an 8 to 7 lead. The lead was short lived as the Americans led by the hitting of Jessica McSheehy and Lauren Sullivan scored three runs to take a 10-8 lead. The National league was held scoreless the rest of the way, by great defense by Danielle Parisi, Nicolette Weber and Casey Lees. The Final was 11-8 with the American league team winning.

Wilmington held its youth softball all-star games this past week.

Those who attend will train to improve their skills using lectures, demonstrations, video analysis, developmental drills, and individual instruction.

The academy features football's best kickers and punters. Numerous scholarships are earned annually. Information on top prospects will be provided to every college football program in the U.S. for recruitment and scholarship opportunities.

Background- Ray Guy is the only pure punter ever drafted in the first round of the NFL Draft, by Oakland in 1973 out of Southern Mississippi, where he was an All-American. He was selected to seven Pro Bowls (six consecutively) had a NFL streak of 619 consecutive punts without a block, and he out kicked his opponent in each of the Raiders three Super Bowl victories during a 14 year career where he never missed a game and he never never had a punt returned for a touchdown! In the 1976 Pro Bowl, one of his punts hit the giant TV screen hanging from the rafters of the Louisiana Superdome. Not only did he punt high and far- "hang-time" came into the NFL lexicon during his tenure his five to six second hang time was so phenomenal, he once had an opponent take a ball he punted and test it for helium! "He's the first punter you could look at and say," He won games." Joe Horrigan, Pro football Hall of Fame Historian.

Thomas Kinton

Logan International Airport's "Go to" man

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Winchester resident and Woburn High School graduate Thomas Kinton is definitely not up in the air about his job, being the Director of Aviation for the Massachusetts Port Authority, in other words the boss at Logan International Airport.

"It's like a small city," Kinton said in describing the facility that sits on 2,400 acres of land in East Boston and Winthrop. "We are sort of our own utility company."

Kinton has held the position since 1993. As part of his duties he oversees all aspects of operations at Boston Logan International Airport, L.G. Hanscom Field, and Worcester Regional Airport.

The focus of Kinton's work over the past several years has been oversight of safety and security of the Authority's airport holdings and efficiency of operations during Logan's $4 billion modernization effort. He has been involved in a broad variety of specialty areas including strategic land use planning, security enhancement strategies, development of a regional airport system for New England, air-side planning initiatives, and business development negotiations.

As Kinton describes it, "I oversee the profit and loss at the three airports."

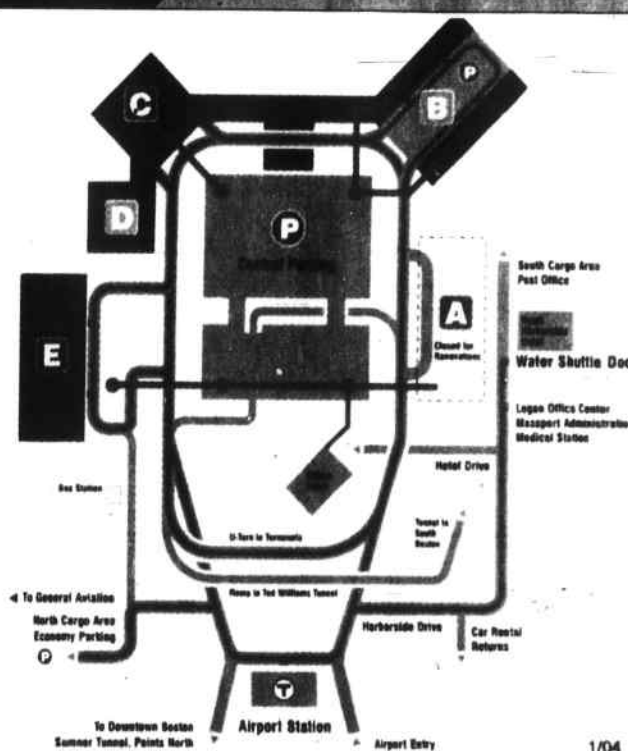

This includes revenues from parking facilities, vendors, landing fees and other revenue sources. He is also responsible for the day-to-day operations of running ground transportation, a fire department, snow-plowing in the winter and landscaping in the summer.

The number of taxi's doing business at Logan alone is staggering. On average, according to MassPort spokesperson Phil Orlandella, there are four thousand cabs per-day and on the Monday following Thanksgiving that number vaults to a staggering 11,000 cabs per-day.

As if this was not enough, Kinton also has the responsibility of working with the Massachusetts State Police, the federal Transportation Security Administration and the Federal Aviation Administration on the day to day security to protect the over 24 million people that go through the airport in a given year.

According to Kinton, Logan is small in size of land mass when compared to facilities such as O'Hare in Chicago which has 10,000 acres or the Logan ranks as the 20th largest airport in the United States for the number of passengers and 37th in the world.

"We are comparable to JFK (New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport) in the number of passengers."

However, Kinton is quick to point out that some of the other airports with larger numbers than Logan are not really adding to the economy of the area, as the passengers never disembark from the planes. He noted that Logan is an "origin and destination" (O and D) facility and not a hub or transfer facility such as Atlanta or O'Hare.

"We're one of the busiest O and D airports in the country," Kinton said.

He attribute the rise in the number of passengers to several factors, not the least of which is the fact that the access to the airport from the west and north has become much easier with the completion of parts of the "Big Dig."

Another factor is the growth in the number of discount airlines that now fly in and out of Logan Airport. These include companies such as Jet Blue, Song, Air Tran, ATA, America West and Independence Air.

THINKING. He has the following saying taped up on his refrigerator door: "As you wander down the ROAD OF LIFE, whatever be your goal, keep your eyes upon the DONUT and not the HOLE..."

I remember when my father would go to the BANK with hopes of securing a LOAN so that he would have the money to REPAIR the ROOF of our house near Revere Beach.

He asked one of the bank clerks sitting behind a desk, "Sir, I would like to speak to the LOAN ARRANGER."

The man looked at my father and smiled, saying, "I'm sorry sir, but the loan arranger is OUT TO LUNCH. But instead, you may want to speak with TONTO KIMASAVI!"...

My late mother was born IRELAND and she just loved to tell this story: A gal named Mary O'Hara sent a LETTER to her husband Pat who was locked up in PRISON. The letter said, "It's ALMOST SPRING and there's no one to DIG the fields and PLANT all the potatoes."

Mary's husband sent a letter in reply saying, "DON'T DIG anywhere near the garden - that's where I hid all the GUNS and AMMUNITION!"

The following morning, Pat received a letter from his wife Mary stating, "A company of SOLDIERS dug up the ENTIRE GARDEN in SEARCH of something. What will I do now?"

Mary's husband quickly replied with, "PLANT the potatoes, my darling!"...

An apprentice barber asked Jimmy Quinno, "What would you like to see on your FACE after I'm through SHAVING your beard?"

A nervous Jimmy replied, "Why, I'd like to see my NOSE, of course!"...

I remember the time when my TEACHER sent a NOTE to my FATHER saying, "Your son should have an ENCYCLOPEDIA."

My father replied, "My son Anthony can WALK to SCHOOL just like I did!"...

JUNE is traditionally GRADUATION month. When I graduated from high school, my TEACHERS were the HAPPIEST people at the ceremony.

Each graduation SPEAKER sounded like a BROKEN RECORD of the speaker who preceded him or her. And I FORGOT everything they had said before ten minutes had passed since the conclusion of their speech.

It's been many summers and winters since I graduated high school, but to this day, I still REMEMBER the words of my former teachers Miss Mary Sullivan.

Miss Sullivan shook my hand and said, "You'll NEVER amount to anything, Chipper. Your JOKES, QUIPS and PUNS that we've all been TORTURED with for the past four years will get you NOWHERE."

Well, if Miss Sullivan meant that I WOULDN'T make a great deal of money, then she was RIGHT. But I DON'T measure success by how much MONEY is made.

Instead, I judge a SUCCESSFUL PERSON by how many people's lives have been BRIGHTENED and made just a bit HAPPIER because of what someone else has said or done...

I APOLOGIZE to Woburn resident EMILY FRAHER for spelling her name wrong...

My father would boast that he knew the GREATEST OF THEM ALL, John L. Sullivan.

Everywhere my father went, he would PROUDLY announce, "Shake the hand that shook the hand of John L. Sullivan!"

Well, when I MET and SHOOK HANDS with Bill McGarr during a visit to the Woburn Elks Club, I understood why my father was so JUBILANT about meeting an outstanding fighter, gentleman and humanitarian John L.

Kern said it well: "Men WON'T SURVIVE without two women in their lives - a SECRETARY to take everything down and a WIFE to pick everything up."

Paul Simon of Winchester once said to me, "Chipper, you have NO EQUALS - only SUPERIORS!"

By the way Paul, did you ever receive an answer to your second letter to the Corinthians...

Folks, there isn't anything FRIENDLIER than a WET DOG...

When Rowan Fitzgerald called my Uncle John Shea and asked for a LOAN of $200, my uncle asked, "WHAT did you say?"

"I asked if I could borrow $200 from you," he replied.

"WHAT did you say?" Uncle John repeated.

At that exact moment, the OPERATOR cut in and said, "Sir, there isn't anything wrong with your connection. I can hear the other party PERFECTLY!"

"Is that so? In that case, you can give that CREEP the $200 the wants from me!"...

About the Towns by Phyllis Nissen

RAMPING UP: PARK, DRIVE AND STAY PUT

Lynnfield: 'A jewel in the crown'

"An announcement by Rotary Club President and Selectman Harry Le Cours that the local service organization intends to provide up to $20,000 for the establishment of a park at Pillings Pond, was met by applause from members of the Pillings Pond Assoc. at a recent meeting of the Board of Selectmen," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"The Conservation Commission has approved a Notice of Intent filed by the town to begin a multi-component aquatic vegetation treatment plan. These plans will include bringing invasive vegetation and algae under control, runoff management, prevention of the addition of nutrients to the pond, public education to especially abutters on how the treatment of private property impacts the condition of the pond, the development of public access and the restoration of the Highland Ave. boat ramp."

"This season's activities will include hydro-raking in the cove on the west end shoreline areas; application of chemical treatments to control vegetation and algae, the manual removal of vegetation and repair of the boat ramp."

"Long range plans at the pond have always included the possible development of public access and a park on Summer St. The total needed for the project is $38,000 which will be a mix of public and private funding."

"Through the efforts of Town Administrator Bill Gustus, the project was brought to the attention of the Rotary Club which voted unanimously to provide the financial assistance. Le Cours said the park will be known as 'Rotary Park' in commemoration of the establishment of the first Rotary Club."

"Gustus commented, 'This fits into our first year activities.' He said the Pillings Pond Association has committed $9,000 to the project and the town will match the $9,000."

"To accommodate the machinery necessary for hydro-raking, the Public Works will perform the necessary work on the Highland Ave. boat ramp."

"Selectman Bob MacKendrick called the pond, 'a great asset of the community, a jewel in the crown of Lynnfield. Rotary's gift to develop the access area takes this a long way....'"

Wilmington: They'll cross that bridge...

"In a public hearing, the Board of Selectmen voted 4 to 1 to offer its endorsement for the re-opening of the New Boston Street Bridge in Woburn," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"Woburn Mayor John Curran and Woburn City Engineer John Corey attended the hearing to answer questions from selectmen and residents."

"The bridge, located just over the Woburn line at the end of Woburn Street, has been closed since it caught fire back in the late 1970s. The Town of Wilmington has opposed its reopening since that time due to traffic concerns. The opening of the new Interstate 93 interchange situated between the Route 128 and 129 interchanges has alleviated those concerns for the majority of the board."

"The New Boston Street Bridge sits entirely in Woburn, but in order to be eligible for state funding to complete the project, Woburn needs the blessing of Wilmington."

"Letters of support for the project were submitted to the board by Wilmington Police Chief Bernard Nally, Wilmington Fire Chief Daniel Stewart, and Wilmington Director of Planning & Conservation Lynn Duncan.

"State Representative James Miceli also offered his support, but he was willing to defer to the position taken by the board, according to Wilmington Town Manager Michael Cairra."

"Selectmen Chairman Michael McCoy has been opposed to the re-opening of the bridge for many years, but he cited the existence of the new I-93 interchange as offering a dramatic improvement to the area."

"The board has been working with Chief Nally on implementing a one-way truck exclusion on the portion of Woburn Street between Eames Street and Lowell Street. Such an exclusion, which would lead some trucks into Woburn, will need Woburn's blessing. McCoy expressed hopes that Woburn would be willing to return the favor by extending a similar approval toward the exclusion."

"Curran couldn't speak for the Woburn City Council, but he didn't see a problem with it...."

Wakefield: truly a 'Rhoades' scholar

"Dealing with criminals and prisoners can be an intimidating ordeal, and Wakefield resident Debra Rhoades has been working in police stations and with prisoners for years," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"She felt that there needed to be a better way of detain-

Movie Reviews by Paul Feely

"SPIDERMAN"

MOVIE: "SPIDERMAN 2"

GRADE: ****

This is easily one of the best comic book movie adaptations ever made.

Spider-Man 2 reunites the filmmakers and cast from the first film, including Tobey Maguire, Kirsten Dunst, James Franco, Rosemary Harris and J.K. Simmons, along with director Sam Raimi, and producers Laura Ziskin and Marvel's Avi Arad. In Spider-Man 2, the webslinging superhero encounters a new nemesis, the villainous "Doc Ock," who is portrayed by Alfred Molina.

Two years have passed, and the mild-mannered Peter Parker faces new challenges as he struggles with "the gift and the curse," desperately trying to balance his dual identities as the web-slinging superhero Spider-Man and his life as a college student. Tormented by his secrets, Peter finds that his relationships with all those he holds dear are in danger of unraveling. His life-long yearning for M.J. (Kirsten Dunst) becomes even stronger as he fights the impulse to reveal his secret life and declare his love.

His friendship with Harry Osborn (James Franco) is complicated by the young Osborn's bitterness over his father's death and his growing vendetta against Spider-Man. Even Peter's beloved Aunt May (Rosemary Harris), who has fallen on hard times after the death of Uncle Ben, begins to have doubts about her nephew.

SHORTTAKES

MOVIE: "FAHRENHEIT 9-11"

GRADE: ***

Director Michael Moore's film about the days of the George W. Bush presidency is less a documentary than it is an indictment for regime change.

Moore, known for his wisecrack way of bringing social issues to the forefront, takes on the Bush administration, borrowing heavily from non-fiction books that point out the financial ties between the families of Osama bin Laden and George W., which succeeds in making one squirm in your seat as you watch the events leading up to the terrorist attacks on 9/11.

The attacks themselves are handled tastefully, as the screen fades to black and only audio is used, but the shots of Bush, attending a photo-op in Florida reading to children, are the most telling: a time counter appears on screen, and one realizes that he sat for a full seven minutes, appearing baffled, holding a book titled 'My Pet Goat' after the second a plane hit the second tower in Manhattan.

There is no middle ground in this movie - it is an anti-Bush piece, and if you share Moore's views you will love it. If not, it will provide another opportunity to rail against the 'liberal media'.

MOVIE: "THE CHRONICLES OF RIDDICK"

GRADE: ***

This movie does a fairly decent job of setting the table for a brand-new science fiction universe, whose producers hope will become fruitful as the 'Star Wars' or 'Star Trek' series have become.

The main character Riddick, played by Vin Diesel, who was part of an ensemble of characters in the cult-favorite sci-fi horror film 'Pitch Black' from five years ago. The film's producers have since seen Diesel's

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Perfection in Burlington

"Lindsay Steinbach went on-line, seeking a test result, and did not believe what she actually saw," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"It seems normal that she would not believe it."

"But there it was, and it was not changing, it was not a mirage."

"It was a perfect 1600 score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT)."

"It was just so weird to see it," said Steinbach, now a Burlington High School senior.

"This feat was also accomplished by Lauren Chikofsky in 2002-2003."

"I just kind of flipped out. I cried, actually," Steinbach went on to say. "I thought it was a mistake, I checked it about 10 times. I was just really happy.... My mom cried, too. Both my mom and dad (Ann and Jeff) were real proud for me."

"Steinbach, who said her initial thoughts on a possible college major center on biology (she said she took a liking to this subject her sophomore year, when she became interested in hereditary genes), first took the SAT in December 2003."

ing people, especially when there are multiple prisoners, so she created a valuable new law enforcement product.

"This valuable new system can detain three to four people at a time and allows the officer to control the situation more easily, and is able to fit anyone, from a 100 pound woman to a 450 pound man."

"This original idea is now being made available for licensing to manufacturers interested in new product development, especially in the law enforcement and military products industry."

"Rhoades is hoping to have it in full production and available to the public within the very near future."

"Additional information about the product can be

"Her score then - 1430 - was not exactly shabby. But she strove to do better."

"I felt like if I worked harder, I would bring it up," Steinbach, 16, said.

"She added that she took several practice tests out of a manual."

"I definitely think those practice tests helped," Steinbach said, adding that she chose not to take the Kaplan SAT preparatory course.

"But I never thought I would get it up to 1600," Steinbach went on to say. "But I tried again and it worked."

"And it was to the amazement, somewhat, of her teammates on the girls' tennis team, who offered their congratulations to Steinbach."

"They also joked around with me. They were saying, 'We knew you were smart, but not that smart,'" Steinbach stated.

"In addition to tennis, Steinbach plays soccer in the fall and indoor track in the winter."

"Steinbach is the oldest of three children in her family; she has younger brothers Jason, 13, and Mark, 9. She feels she has set a goal for her brothers to reach."

"I think so," Steinbach said. "They might be a little nervous about it, but I think so...."

Exotica in Stoneham

"It all started with a simple suggestion, and - as is the case with most grassroots movements - the idea took on a life and momentum of its own," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"Colonial Park School first grader Jacob Moriarty is a big fan of the cartoon Tarzan, and as any self-respecting fan of the jungle set action-adventure, Moriarty is concerned that the exotic vegetation and fascinating animals indigenous to the rain forest are protected from development and greed."

"With that in mind, Moriarty and the other members of Ellen Levine's first-grade class put together a fund to save the rain forest. The kids did chores around the house, earned money from their parents for their toil, and then sent the accumulated $59.62 to the 'Rain Forest Action Network Project on Acre Program' fund."

"The rain forest is shrinking everyday and the animals aren't going to have anywhere to live," said Moriarty, who brought in a $5 donation on the first day.

"Levine saw the concern in the students' eyes and marveled at the way an idea began to develop once their minds were set into protection mode."

"She discussed the situation with Colonial Park Principal Maureen Burke, and the two women came up with the chores for donation drive."

"The class also made rain-forest posters to increase other students' awareness about the deforestation problem."

"This was the first year that a first grade class took the initiative to ask if they could help," said Colonial Park parent Stacey Hindle.

"I'd really never done anything like this before with a class, but the discussion about the rain forest really struck a chord with the kids," box office clout rise, and have hitched their wagon to his star, so to speak, and created a series about the mysterious man with glowing eyes.

In the five years since 'Pitch Black' Riddick, a wise-cracking, renegade killing machine, has been on the run from authorities and bounty hunters. When a mysterious alien race called the Necromongers begins destroying one world after another, and threatens the homeworld of one of the few people Riddick trusts, he is called back to civilization to take on the greatest threat the populated universe has ever known.

The special effects are very good, and Riddick is a likable enough character. The director does a fairly good job of setting up the myths and legends that populate this particular galaxy, though one has a hard time imagining where the storyline could go over any potential sequels they hope to make.

said Levine.

"First-grader Brooke Hindle talked about the different jobs she performed in doing her part for the rain-forest."

"I cleaned my room, and the kitchen, and the living room, and the bathroom," said Hindle. "It felt good to do something for the Rainforest...."

Park in North Reading.

The race directors are expecting over 200 runners and this year's race promises to be the biggest and most exciting race in its 10-year history. Because of the race's popularity in the past, this year's race includes medal awards for the top three male and top three female finishers in each age division. A $300 cash prize will be awarded to the runner setting a new course record (held by Matthew Kerr, 24:30; and Lynn MacDougall, 28:30).

There will be a band providing live music and entertainment for everyone's enjoyment throughout the race and post race activities, which includes raffles and giveaways. This year, the race again will be run in conjunction with the North Reading recreation Department summer barbeque series.

Come down to the park on the 21st with your family and friends to participate in a whole day of fun and excitement.

Applications are available on line at coolrunning.com, or by calling Thomas Favaloro at 978-664-1000, x12.

Local artists to exhibit on Newbury Street

Winchester artists Carolyn Sirois and Mary Hart will be represented in a show 0-9/ A-Z at Upstairs at Johnson Art Gallery during the month of July.

The exhibit opens on July 7 in the airy second floor gallery above Johnson Paint Company. The artists met through the Winchester Artists' Network several years ago when they participated in Art in August, and entered into conversations which led to this show.

"Using a variety of materials, we gravitate to the painted surface and the gestural mark," says Sirois, who incorporates thread, ink and other media into her works which map overlapping sites on paper and canvas.

Hart, with a background in calligraphy and graphic design, works to deconstruct traditional text formats, combining letters and images into new arrangements while using traditional tools and materials.

Hart, who teaches at the SMFA and Middlesex Community College, and Sirois, a graduate of the SMFA fifth year program, are joined by Dianne Pappas in this group show. The exhibit is an opportunity to see work by three artists who share an interest in words and their meaning, letters and their form and numbers and their arrangement.

The show is on display from July 7 - 31 at 355 Newbury St., Boston. Gallery hours are M-F 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m.-1 p.m. The public is invited to an artist reception on Saturday, July 10 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

You can reach the gallery at 617-536-4065.

Artists Carolyn Sirois, left and Mary Hart, both of Winchester will be exhibiting their work at a show on Boston's Newbury Street. The exhibit opens July 7th and runs until the last day of July.

The show, 0-9/A-Z will be on display at the Upstairs at Johnson Art Gallery and the public is invited to an artists' reception on Saturday July 10th from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Please call the gallery at (617) 536-4065 for more information.

Logan's Thomas Kinton

From S-1

In the days when Logan was pushing for regionalization, the only discount airline was Southwest and that company was only flying into Providence, Rhode Island's T. F. Greene or Manchester (New Hampshire) International Airport.

"When you add up the daily seats, we now have more low fare seats than T. F. Greene and Manchester," Kinton said. Then you can weigh in the legacy carriers (American, Delta, Northwest, and United) who have lowered their airfares."

According to Kinton, the two out of state airports have just about reached their peak level with Manchester serving five million people per-year and three million flying out of Greene.

"There is no longer a need or desire for people to fly out of their catchment area," Kinton said. "All the construction and improvements at Logan have worked."

Kinton has been employed at Logan since 1976 and formerly held the positions of Director of Operations and Manager of Airport Facilities. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from Merrimack College and is currently a member of the Policy Review Committee of the American Association of Airport Executives (AAAE).

He lives in Winchester with his wife, Nancy (Shinnick) and two daughters Alicia, who is entering her senior year at Winchester High School, and Kelsey who will be a freshman. For a short period after 9/11 Kinton was the acting chief executive officer for MassPort.

After college, Kinton worked as a temporary employee in the engineering department assigned to the airport.

"I fell in love with the aviation society and applied for a job in the building control center, Kinton recalled.

In what he describes as a "very positive progress" Kinton moved up through the ranks to his present position.

For all of his accomplishments, Kinton is a humble person and Orlandella had to toot his horn on the three awards the boss has received in the past year. This included the AAAE's highest award for Safety on the Airfield, which denotes the lack of accidents on the flight paths and runways.

Recently the MassPort Fire Department also received the AAAE's Fire Safety Award and Kinton has received the first ever Executive Award from the FAA.

"When ever I receive these awards, I receive them on behalf of my staff," Kinton said. "They are the ones that make me look good."

Because of Logan's position during the event of 9/11 Kinton noted that security is an active subject at the airport.

"We saw the war on terrorism up close and personal," Kinton said recalling the flights that hit New York after taking off from Boston and the flight that landed in Boston carrying the "shoe bomber" who failed in his attempt to blow the plane up.

"We run daily security meetings every morning at 8:30," Kinton said. "The room is full every morning."

He noted that the meetings are attended by personnel from TSA, State Police, the airlines, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the private security firms at the airport.

Another area of planning at the airport is the upcoming traffic jam during the week of the Democratic National Convention (DNC). Kinton estimates that on the Friday before the DNC the number of passengers using the airport will jump from its average July Friday usage of 87,000 to about 107,000. The Friday following the DNC, July 30 Kinton estimates that the number of passengers using the airport could jump as high as 117,000.

He notes that load factors will be up 15 to 20 percent during the week.

Kinton's warning to travelers is to allow plenty of extra time to get to the airport during the week of the convention and to use alternate transportation means, such as the Blue Line on the MBTA and the Logan Express busses from the Anderson Transportation Center in Woburn.

Keep AC bill in check

Summer has just arrived and homeowners should be aware that in the coming months, the heat from outdoors will be pouring into homes.

The heat gain from the sun can put quite a load on a house's air conditioning system, keeping it running at a high rate which ensures steep summer cooling bills, particularly in older, less energy efficient homes.

There are ways, however, to keep air conditioning bills in check. The CertainTeed Home Institute offers an array of tips to reduce energy costs this summer.

- Add metalized polyester film to windows if the home's windows don't have efficient insulated models. These films reflect summer heat, keeping the warmth outdoors.

- Check insulation levels. Make sure there exists the correct level of fiber glass insulation in attics, crawlspaces and basements. If the insulation is lacking, add more.

Remember, as insulation can keep a home warmer in the winter, it can keep that same home cooler in the summer months.

- Install a clock thermostat that will automatically adjust the home's temperature at strategic times of day. The home can be kept cooler during the day, while the thermostat can switch to a slightly warmer setting during the night hours.

- Plant trees and shrubs. Strategically planted landscaping in a home's yard can aid in reducing energy costs. Deciduous trees with lots of leaves are best if planted in front of sunny windows, as they will keep sunlight from entering into a home's living area, and increasing the temperature.

- In addition, hardy low-lying evergreens and shrubs planted close to the foundation of a house slows cooled air from escaping into desk and chair are typically necessary objects within a child's bedroom. The desk and chair is typically the last major furniture item that needs to be purchased.

• Window Coverings

Cordless miniblinds, pleated shades or vertical blinds in a neutral color are practical and versatile solutions for any youngster's room. These are durable options and with the addition of valances or toppers they can drastically alter the room's look or style.

Many safety experts recommend using cordless window coverings in children's rooms to avoid potential strangulation hazards.

In any case, experts say that miniblinds and corded window coverings made before 2001 should be replaced or retrofitted with cord-repair devices that reduce cord strangulation risks.

Products that are currently on the market typically come with built-in cord safety features.

• Floor Coverings

An area rug generally works best in a child's room. A tried-and-true solution is to purchase a remnant or piece of broadloom that can be cut and bound to the necessary size.

Look for carpeting that is low pile with stain and traffic-resistant features. Solid colors or subtle multi-colored yarns in mid-tonal neutral shades work well in almost any room.

Once parents purchase the basic furniture items, window coverings and floor coverings for a child's room, the inevitable decor makeovers can be accomplished with minimal expense.

• Quick Change Artistry

The number one makeover element for any room is color.

Wall color makes the single most dramatic impact on a room's ambience and the wisest choice in terms of time and money is to paint rather than wallpaper.

Once the wall color has been selected, the rest of the room can be easily transformed by choosing a contrasting or coordinating color or pattern for the bedspread, carrying the look to other design elements like valances, wallpaper borders or pillows.

When a child decides that another room makeover is necessary within a few years time, there's a strong possibility that you'll need little more than another gallon of paint, a different bedspread, a new valance or pillows, an a good-natured tolerance for your child's latest taste in posters.

For GMAC Mortgage Services Ask For Rick Capobianco

Mortgage rates are heading up

After years of record low mortgage rates, they are now beginning to rise. Bankrate.com reports that mortgage rates have risen almost a full percentage point since the middle of March.

In addition, the Mortgage Bankers Association reports that the Federal Reserve is likely to begin raising rates this month due to strong employment growth in March and April, rising inflation pressures and recent solid production growth.

While interest rates can respond quickly to economic conditions, housing values tend to respond to sales and therefore, react much faster. In the past, this has created short-term disconnects between prices and interest rates.

There was a period a few years ago when rates had fallen and prices had not yet taken off. This offered bargains to the first-time homebuyers who could get both low prices and low interest rates.

Today, the reverse is true.

With rates poised to rise,

perhaps very quickly, prices will lag, creating a real barrier.

First-time homebuyers who are seeking to get over a rent-versus-buy hurdle will find this environment more difficult than those with equity already established.

Steve Bucci, president of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Southern New England, encourages consumers who are in the market for a new home to consider the following:

- Don't be too hasty when considering a 15-year over a 30-year mortgage.

While one might save thousands worth of interest with the shorter term mortgage, you will lose flexibility and the monthly payment will be higher.

- Evaluate your budget and realize that principal, interest, property taxes and insurance rates may now be different than they were only months before.

You may have to take another look at what your budget will cover and accordingly adjust your house shopping.

- Know your credit score before you get too serious.

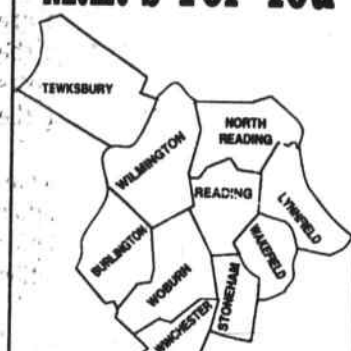

If you are considering filing a mortgage application, a good credit score is essential in securing the best possible loan.

- Realize that when you close on a house, the expenses don't stop.

Mold From S-8

mold spores are everywhere, but a proper remediation strategy is the key to solving mold problems, while incorrect approaches could create more problems," Cochrane recently told a group of officials concerned with mold-related issues in public schools.

Cochrane Ventilation Inc. is a leading New England indoor environmental remediation and management company.

"Common sense solutions should prevail, and that means understanding the extent of the problem and applying the appropriate remedy," Cochrane added.

Since mold problems signal an underlying water-related problem, it's necessary to find the source of the water before one can solve the mold problem.

Cochrane, who explained that current data indicates that no one type of mold is more toxic than any other type, suggested the following approach when dealing with a mold problem.

- Determine the extent of the mold problem. Mold contamination is frequently a relatively minor problem that can be solved inexpensively, without the help of a professional.

If mold is found, it's always best to devote resources to removing it than, for example, to engage in extensive testing operations to determine the type and quantity of the mold.

It's also vital that the focus remains on resolving the water problem, rather than focusing on solving the mold problem. In most instances, resolving the water problem will lead to the resolution of the mold problem.

- If there is a need to hire a remediation service, be sure that a work plan is developed for the project.

Key considerations for mold remediation include steps to permanently correct the water and moisture problem, use of appropriate personal protective equipment, steps to contain and remove moldy building materials to prevent further contamination, and provisions to assess further during the remediation process to address any newly discovered facts or conditions.

- Obtain proof that the remediation firm has mold-specific insurance. Always hire a professional who has insurance coverage, and don't hesitate to ask for proof of insurance.

Stonehaven reminiscent of old country retreat

By Associated Designs

The Stonehaven clearly lives up to its name. Stone veneer covers most of the multigabled front facade, invoking the ambience of a European country retreat. Keystones crowning the entry arch and most front windows add a classic flavor to this estate-size, contemporary plan.

Entering, you pass between handsome stone veneer pillars into a bright two-story foyer. Natural light washes in through sidelights and a gracefully arched transom. An open stairway climbs up the left side and curves around to the right, terminating in a balcony overlook.

Double doors to the right open into a den, which could be used as a home office. Pocket doors on the left slide out of the way to reveal a high-ceilinged, richly windowed, sunken living room. The gas fireplace here serves as a focal point. This space flows into the dining room, which is one step up.

A well-lit, roomy kitchen is at the heart of this home. It can be reached from the dining room, foyer, and extensive patio, as well as the utility room and garage. A second stairway also provides a direct link with the second floor.

Two work islands boost work space, and there's a walk-in pantry as well. The octagonal nook creates a sunny, cheerful eating area, and this entire space is totally open to the spacious family room.

The Stonehaven's luxurious master suite boasts dual walk-in closets and direct access to a partially covered hot tub on the patio. Three more bedrooms, two bathrooms, and an unfinished storage room are upstairs.

One of the bedrooms is a guest suite with a balcony. Another has a window seat with storage below. The shared bathroom also has a bench tucked in a windowed alcove.
